

Stern Calls Press Guild "Cancerous;" Recognition Was Tragedy

By MAX HALL
Washington, Feb. 11 (AP)—J. David Stern declared today he sold his three newspapers at "heavy personal loss" in order to "warn this nation" against the American Newspaper Guild, which he called a "cancerous growth" that jeopardizes a free press.

On February 1 Stern suspended publication of the Philadelphia Record and the Camden (N. J.) Bulletin Courier and Post after a guild strike had lasted three months.

Today he declared in a statement prepared for the House Labor Committee:

Intended To Destroy
"Gentlemen of the committee, I am now convinced that the Guild deliberately struck my newspapers with the intent to destroy them."

Yesterday Sam B. Eubanks, executive vice president of the CIO union, told the committee that Stern "provoked" the strike by refusing to bargain.

Stern termed this "a childish and obvious lie."

Calling a free press the bulwark of liberty, Stern added:

"I am making atonement for the disservice I have rendered this great institution as the first publisher who recognized the newspaper guild."

Heavy Personal Loss

"I have retired from business at heavy personal loss. I saw no other way to warn this nation against the cancerous growth that jeopardizes the great institution to which I have devoted my life."

Stern sold his newspaper properties and radio station WCAU to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

He told the committee that second only to his error in urging his writers to unionize was "ignoring the guild's insults and disparagements."

"For ten years," Stern asserted, "I have swallowed a steady barrage of venom based on obvious and childish lies which I considered unworthy of answer. For the past ten years, although I was paying the highest wages in our town and in America, I was attacked by the guild as an enemy of the very principles for which I have always fought."

Admits "Grave Mistake"
At another point Stern said: "I have always given in to the guild because I thought that sometime it would come of age."

But, he went on, "All my aims have turned to dust. I have done more to harm the position of the working newspaperman than to benefit him. I have put him in the straight jacket of a sinister pressure group."

"I now publicly admit that I made a grave mistake in recognizing the guild," Stern said adding that in "defense" of this "error" it should be recalled that the guild originally was a craft union for writers, photographers and artists.

"I was naive enough to trust that they would exercise the power I had placed in their hands with moderation, restraint and idealism," the witness continued. "A few years later I was shocked to find the guild had turned themselves into an industrial union including clerks, stenographers, telephone solicitors and so forth."

His Single Hope
Discussing the wage demands that led to the strike call last November 7, Stern said they were "fantastic" and would have cost more than $1,500,000 a year, plus a proportionate amount for the AFL unions which represented two thirds of the newspaper staffs.

"This spelled bankruptcy for my newspapers," Stern testified. Stern closed his statement with this suggestion to the committee:

"That no editor or creator of opinion on any newspaper, magazine or radio should be compelled to belong to any organization, whether trade union or any other. This is the best way in which the Congress can protect the precious freedom of the press."

"That is the one constructive contribution I hope will come out of this great tragedy in my life."

BULLETINS

London, Feb. 11 (AP)—The labor government cabinet reviewed the critical coal shortage again today and informed sources said it soon might extend the domestic electricity cuts to the entire nation, including Scotland.

Factories were closed. Unemployment queues lengthened. The dole was back. Homes and stores were darkened. Public indignation mounted.

The weather turned freezing again as the nation dipped further into inadequate stocks from the recently socialized mines and more snow was forecast. Stock prices sagged. Winston Churchill shouted in Parliament.

SCHOOL BOARD NAMES GROUP ON RECREATION

A four-man committee composed of school board members who have had previous experience with the recreation program, was named by President Charles Black at the regular meeting of the Gettysburg school board Monday night at the high school to act with a borough council committee to consider a comprehensive, year-round youth recreation program here.

Named to this committee are: Ralph Z. Oyler, Mahlon P. Hartzell, Charles B. Bender and Charles M. Sheely. Their appointment followed the appearance before the school board of Dr. Dwight F. Putman and Mrs. F. Lester Scott, who appeared before the borough council a week ago to request that these two bodies take over the recreational program. Dr. Putman exhibited petitions which he said contained 1,165 signatures of Gettysburg residents as evidence that the town wants a recreation program for youth. "There is a lot of sentiment in the community for someone to provide a program," he said.

Many Difficulties

"As a volunteer group, we ran up against many difficulties calling for a stronger base than we were able to provide," he added, in requesting that the school board and borough council take over the work. He offered the experience of members of the volunteer group in aiding the proposed new setup.

"We believe the effort ought to come from the council and the school board," he said. "The committee is willing to cooperate and give the value of its experience. The program might be worked in with a (Please Turn to Page 4)

Congratulations to the school board on its initial step to cooperate with borough council in formulating an all-year recreation program at Gettysburg.

The committee, appointed by President Black to study the proposed plan can be depended upon to give its best efforts toward a successful and complete recreational program here. Council, likewise, will do its best to make such a plan possible.

This is a big step toward better and better things for Gettysburg.

Unless we provide the means for the younger generation to play and associate together in clean, wholesome exercise and fun . . . to give vent to their pent-up energies and guide them in the proper channels, we can accept full responsibilities for their errors.

Gettysburg at the present provides little for the younger folks. They have movies and drug store booths as their chief attractions now. They cannot be asked or expected to spend their leisure time reading, listening to music and limited home activities. They must be given the opportunity to associate together, under proper guidance, where they will not only develop their minds and their bodies but learn the principles of fellowship and clean associations.

The movement is well started. Here's hoping it is continued to a fruitful conclusion.

Beauty Shop Is Damaged By Fire

Fire of unknown origin damaged the beauty shop operated by Evelyn Eisenhart at East Berlin Monday midnight. The extent of the loss was not available today.

The rear wall of the building was damaged along with some equipment. The Liberty fire company of East Berlin prevented the spread of flames. Equipment in the shop was moved next door.

Charles Tyger, who resides next door, succeeded in shutting off an oil supply from a tank used for heating and prevented a possible explosion of the tank.

The property is owned by George Shetter.

William Dull, who operates a restaurant nearby, discovered the blaze.

Fred Shetter, a member of the fire company, was treated by Dr. Eugene Elgin for a severe laceration of his right arm and a scorched right hand.

KINDLINESS OF LINCOLN CITED IN ROTARY TALK

Abraham Lincoln's kindness and humor were the topic of an address given Monday at the local Rotary club by Alvan C. Baker, superintendent of the Gettysburg National Cemetery.

The Civil War president's kindness was said by the generals to be ruining discipline in the army. Baker pointed out, but the president, despite the protests of his generals, still could not resist pleas from parents for commutation of sentences when their sons were scheduled to be shot or hanged for infractions of army regulations, he added.

"After the president had set aside sentences against a number of members of his command General Butler wrote to Lincoln complaining of the president's habit of commuting sentences and pointing out that the president's actions were ruining discipline among the troops," Baker said. "The president had Butler's letter on his desk when a distraught father was brought in. The father told of how his son was sentenced to be shot at the direction of General Butler. Lincoln explained the letter he had just received from Butler to the parent and then said he would write Butler and tell him not to execute the man until further orders. The father said he appreciated that but was worried about the further orders part. Lincoln replied, 'If General Butler waits for the further orders your son will live to be as old as Methusalem'."

Temper's Harsh Note
"Lincoln's natural kindness was based on a thorough knowledge of human nature. Not only did he interfere with the generals on that basis but he also interfered with foreign policy on the same basis. His secretary of state, incensed over the apparent favoring of the confederacy by England wrote a scolding note to England. Lincoln looked (Please turn to Page 2)

WOMAN'S CLUB TO DECIDE ON POLIO PROJECT

The February meeting of the Woman's club of Gettysburg will be held at the YWCA Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. William Tyson, president of the club, will preside at the business session preceding the program.

The feature of the program for the afternoon will be an informal discussion of the Sister Kenny treatment for infantile paralysis. About four years ago the club started to raise funds to help combat the dread infantile paralysis in this area. Miss Netta Ford, executive director of the Visiting Nurse Association of York, a national figure with 30 years experience in the field, will speak from her experience. Their messages will be followed by a discussion by members of the club.

A question and answer period will be conducted before a vote is taken on the plan for carrying out the polio project.

Miss Dorothy Lee, chairman, radio and motion picture department of the club, will introduce the guest speakers and preside during the program features.

Hostesses for the meeting include Mrs. Ralph D. Wickerham, chairman; Mrs. Thomas L. Cline, Mrs. C. H. Hett, Mrs. Robert M. Hunt, Mrs. C. Harold Johnson, Mrs. John S. Rice, Mrs. Allen Stauffer, Mrs. Rebecca H. Uber, and Mrs. Leroy H. Winebrenner.

The resignation was sent this morning to the state extension service office. Miss Adams plans to leave April 1 for an extended tour to the west coast and Mexico.

Miss Adams did not disclose her plans other than to announce the trip she is planning for spring, but she added that the resignation will permit her to carry out a number of activities which she has been contemplating for some time, including the extended tour of the U. S. and Mexico.

She began her duties here February 1, 1937, coming to the extension service from Temple university where she was an associate instructor in home economics. She is a graduate of Beaver college, near Philadelphia, and did post graduate work at Penn State college and at Temple university.

40 Hours Devotion Will End Tonight

The annual Forty Hours Devotions for the boys residents of Paradise Protectors, near Abbottstown, which were opened with a high mass and procession of the most blessed sacrament in the protectors chapel on Sunday morning will be closed with solemn services this evening beginning at 7:30.

There were special devotions on Sunday and Monday evenings, as well as mass at 6:45 Monday and this morning, with confessions heard prior to each mass.

Present at the services, in addition to protectors boys and Sisters of St. Joseph who care for them, were parishioners of Paradise Catholic church who have been using the chapel for parish services while their own church is under repair. Due to these repairs, the additional Forty Hours Devotions for the parish did not take place this year at the regular time.

The Rev. Chester Loszewski, pastor and chaplain, has been in charge, with the protectors choir furnishing special music.

Following the Sunday morning services, Father Loszewski repeated the blessing of throats, in observance of the Feast of St. Blasie, marked on February 3. The blessing was repeated for the benefit of those who could not attend church last Monday evening when the feast day was regularly observed.

Care Used In Writing
Because transportation facilities in our country's infancy were almost nil, and letters the only means of communication between individuals, with their delivery slow and far between, much thought and care were given to their preparation. Not only were they filled with news and local happenings, but national and international problems were discussed, the philosophical bent indulged, and morals and religion accounted for.

Famous Letter Writers
Among famous and outstanding personal letters—as moving as any ever written—are Disraeli's (Earl Beaconsfield, author and Prime Minister of England), letters to his sister, written during the Victorian era; and those written by the renowned lexicographer, writer, critic, and conversationalist, Doctor Samuel Johnson, to a Miss Porter after the death of Johnson's mother. Filled with literature, but with what is even better than literature—life, character, and comradeship, they are well worth the reading.

But why go beyond our own shores in quest of the accomplished letter-writer? One need only visit the Library of Congress in Washington to read, in fading ink and time-stained paper, the drama and history of America.

To browse through these immortal productions of the by-gone letter-writer is a most fascinating, thrilling and fruitful experience.

Letter Writing—A Lost Art
By Leighton C. Taylor

With the passing of the quill pen, the inkhorn, and the sand shaker, and the advent of the typewriter, with its offspring, the stenographer, typist, the fine art of letter-writing gradually disappeared from among our cultural accomplishments.

Someone has said, when evaluating the letter-writer, that "to be able to say what you mean in a letter is a useful accomplishment, but to say what you mean in such a way as at the same time to say what you are is immortality."

Another commentator has it, that the letter of the quill pen period was invested with so much personality that the recipient of one of these masterpieces could easily imagine himself in the presence of his correspondent.

Reports Attack By Unknown Man

Horace L. Bender, 37 Chambersburg street, reported to borough police at 1:10 a. m. today that he had been attacked by a man in a light tan overcoat in a doorway on Chambersburg street, and that the man later apologized and declared the whole thing was just "a mistake in identity."

Bender called police and said he wanted an officer. When Officer Albert L. Wolford responded, Bender told the policeman, according to Wolford, that he was attacked by "a party about six feet tall, weighing about 220 pounds," in the doorway to Tom George's apartments.

Bender said his assailant wore a light tan overcoat and light tan hat. Bender told police that he broke his assailant's hold, and grabbed him by the throat. Then the stranger offered his apology and said "he was mistaken in the party."

Police looked, but were unable to find the man described by Bender.

Lions See Film ON PULPWOOD

Colored motion pictures made in Adams county, other parts of Pennsylvania and nearby states of pulpwood harvesting operations were shown Monday evening to members and guests of the Gettysburg Lions club at the Shetter House by D. E. Hess, member of the club and a field representative of the Glattfelder Paper company of Spring Grove.

The film was made by Mr. Hess. The use of old and new machines for felling trees, and new methods in the sawing and transportation of the pulpwood to the mill also were shown. Various types of mechanical, chain and circular saws and loading devices, many of them in use in Adams county's wooded hills, were shown in operation. The peeling and handling of oak bark for tanning purposes also was included. A "one-man crosscut saw" was one of the more unusual tools shown in use in the film.

President Milton R. Remmel presided at the meeting with about 45 Lions and guests in attendance. The clubmen dined on coldcuts, potato salad, rolls and ice cream—with as many cups of hot coffee as they desired. Gas company regulations on Monday morning stopped the use of gas for cooking foods in restaurants, hotels and clubs.

Among the guests was Past District Governor Harry Lenker, of York.

TEACHER GETS LEAVE; SECOND RESIGNS POST

The Gettysburg school board, at its regular meeting at the high school Monday night, granted a request for a maternity leave of absence from Mrs. Helen Butt Eden, teacher at the High street school, and accepted the resignation of Miss Doris Neithammer, girls' physical education instructor. Mrs. Eden's leave will begin later this month and continue until September, 1948. Mrs. C. Allen Sloat was engaged as substitute. Miss Neithammer's resignation is effective at the end of the present school year.

The board granted permission to the American Legion to use the baseball field at the high school, contingent upon policing the grounds after each game, paying the federal tax on admissions and with the understanding that its use by the Legion would not conflict with the use by the school or recreational programs.

To Probe Complaint
A complaint that pupils who come to school by bus and bring their lunches with them, are allowed to eat their lunches and spend their noon hours at the Meade school without adult supervision, was referred to Superintendent of Schools Lloyd C. Keefe for investigation and report. School Trustee George T. Raffensperger said he had received a complaint that there were no teachers at the school during the noon hour.

After having it pointed out to them that school property, particularly the high school, was under-insured, the board voted to increase its insurance coverage on this building from $200,000 to $320,000, and to take out a policy for the additional $120,000 with Philip Bickle until such time as an appraisal can be made. Mr. Bickle offered to make an appraisal free of charge for the school board.

College Opens Building Expansion Campaign With $203,570 In Donations

The Gettysburg college expansion campaign fund drive passed the $200,000 mark early this morning in initial and scattered reports from alumni gatherings. The goal has been set at a minimum of $500,000.

"Enthusiastic reports of alumni gatherings tell of inspiring meetings," Minker added. A telegram from Buffalo, N. Y., is representative of the spirit of the alumni. "Five alumni present, three prevented by blizzard. $815 pledged will follow up absentees." It was signed: John G. Fleck.

At Monday night's alumni dinner, it was announced that the board of trustees of the college had pledged over $100,000 while the faculty had added $12,000 to $15,000.

The first report on Adams County's share of $75,000 will be made tomorrow noon at a luncheon meeting at Hotel Gettysburg.

The note went through that way and was very effective, whereas it probably, if it had gone through as originally written would have further strained Anglo-American relations.

"Lincoln usually used his stories and humor to point a moral but he was not above making a joke merely because the opportunity presented itself. As an example, a message came to Lincoln that a general and several miles had been captured by the confederates. Lincoln expressed great concern and urged that something be done about the matter. 'While we can always replace a general,' Lincoln said, 'good mules cost several hundred dollars apiece.'"

Truthful Generals

"On another occasion a visitor asked Lincoln how many Confederate soldiers were still in the field. Lincoln replied immediately, 'One million, two hundred thousand.' The visitor was astounded and asked the president how he arrived at his estimate. 'Very simply,' Lincoln replied, 'Whenever my generals are defeated they write me they were outnumbered by to one. Now there are 300,000 men in the Union army and since my generals are all truthful men there must be 1,200,000 confederates.'"

Baker was introduced by Dr. J. Walter Coleman, superintendent of the Gettysburg National Military Park. Dr. Chester N. Gitt, president of Rotary, presided at the meeting held in the YWCA. Forty members were present. Despite previous reports the Rotary committee of the YWCA was able to serve a warm meal Monday evening for the club's dinner. Preliminary activities in the annual Red Cross drive for funds in Adams county continued today with arrangements being completed for a number of activities to be conducted during the campaign.

Paul W. Littleton, general chairman for Gettysburg, asked his sub-chairmen within the community to pick up materials for the drive before Saturday at the Red Cross office on Baltimore street.

Acceptances from four local dairies were received from a plea sent out to all county dairies asking the milk delivermen to place Red Cross collars on the bottles of milk delivered during March 1, 2, or 3. The dairies that have already promised their cooperation are the Gettysburg Ice and Storage, Lonce's, Little's and Weener's, Miss Margaret McMillan, executive secretary of the county Red Cross, said today. Other dairies are expected to promise cooperation within the next few days. Over 8,000 collars have been secured to be placed around the milk bottles at the opening of the drive. The collars, made of paper, outline the need for Red Cross activities.

The county Red Cross this year is seeking $12,440 in its March drive. Churches throughout the county are asked to designate March 2 as Red Cross Sunday and active solicitation will begin Monday, March 3. The county chapter hopes to house canvass for donations of money and food.

GAS BAN IS LIFTED TODAY

Restrictions on the consumption of natural gas in the Gettysburg district were lifted shortly before 11 o'clock this morning, Eugene Williams, manager of the Gettysburg Gas Corporation, announced.

Rising temperatures which enabled the corporation to build up pressures in their transmission lines was given as the reason for the lifting of the restrictions this morning.

Natural gas consumers may now use gas as they wish, Mr. Williams said. This applies to industrial as well as commercial and household users.

Dr. J. Walter Coleman, superintendent of the battlefield, had ordered the gas flame in the Eternal Light Peace Memorial, Oak Ridge, turned off this morning. This action was taken several hours before Mr. Williams had lifted the restrictions.

Several hundred dollars damage occurred to two residences in the south portion of the town Monday afternoon about 4 o'clock with the fire company called to extinguish flames at the two structures within ten minutes.

While the firemen were busy there they were called at 4 o'clock to the home of Charles Timbers, 700 South Washington street, where a coal stove in the kitchen had exploded, setting fire to the walls of the kitchen. In both cases firemen were called in time to prevent what could have been serious fires, Chief James A. Aumen said today.

BUCKNELL WILL BE STRONG FOE FOR BULLET 5

Gettysburg college's cagers will attempt to hit the comeback trail here Wednesday evening when the strong Bucknell university quintet will be met in another Middle Atlantic conference game.

The Bullets face a tough assignment in the Bisons who have one of their best teams in years.

Last week Bucknell dropped three games in a row, losing by narrow margins to American university, Navy and Lafayette, and are certain to redouble their efforts to snap that streak. Lafayette barely edged out the Bisons 49-48 at Lewisburg Saturday night.

Bucknell has a classy array of stars which is headed by Frank Haas, forward, leading scorer. The Bison lineup will probably include Wilson and Haas, forwards; Williams, center, and Seal and Dees, guards.

Much improvement will have to be shown by the Bullets if they hope to upset their opponents. Against Muhlenberg the Orange and Blue quintet gave a ragged exhibition but Coach "Hen" Bream is hopeful his charges will be on the rebound on Wednesday night.

Coach Leroy Bloomingdale's undefeated Bullet junior varsity is expected to encounter one of its toughest foes to date when it tangles with the Bucknell reserves in the preliminary at 7 o'clock.

The Bullet scrubs have copped seven games in a row and have been extended in but two games.

Johnstown To Get Junior Baseball

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—The 1947 Junior Amateur Baseball tournament will be held at Johnstown, Pa., probably the last week in August, the All-American Amateur Baseball association announces.

Harrisburg, Pa., is one of three cities in the running for the unlimited class tournament, the association disclosed. Washington, D. C., and Brooklyn also seek to play host to the open tournament which will be held Labor Day.

Wallace M. Jones of Harrisburg was one of three association vice presidents elected yesterday by representatives of 32 cities.

John Bunyan was born at Elstow, England, in 1628.

Lippy Leo Has Rickey Backing

Brooklyn, Feb. 11 (AP)—Leo Durocher has a vote of confidence from the man who counts most, Boss Branch Rickey of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Labeling himself a Durocher man, Rickey bluntly denied rumors there might be a managerial change at Ebbets field in 1947 as the result of "what happened in California."

"Never for a moment have I considered the possibility that Leo might not continue as manager," the Dodgers president spoke out yesterday in straight-from-the-shoulder language.

Recent coast-to-coast publicity resulting from Leo's marriage to screen actress Laraine Day and the subsequent legal controversy in California touched off a storm of speculation about his baseball future.

Young Jim Bagby Sold To Pirates
Boston, Feb. 11 (AP)—Jim Bagby, Jr., brought back to the Red Sox from Cleveland last season, today was sold out of the American league to the Pittsburgh Pirates of the rival National league.

Bagby made his major league debut one to be remembered when he defeated the powerful New York Yankees on opening day in 1938. His record has been in and out since then with his all time big league career showing 92 victories and the same number of losses.

In the middle of the 1931 season Bagby, who came up from Hazleton in the New York-Penn. league, was sent down to Little Rock in the southern association.

The Sox brought him back in 1940 and the next season traded him to Cleveland where he remained until the Sox brought him back once again for last season when he had a 7-6 record.

Spec Sanders Best Pro Ground Gainer
New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—A rookie halfback in a brand new league today was disclosed as professional football's top ground gainer for the 1946 season.

Figures released by the all-American football conference showed Orban "Spec" Sanders, pro freshman from Texas, topped both his new league and the older National football league by netting 709 yards in 140 rushing attempts for the New York Yankees.

Bill Dudley of the Pittsburgh Steelers led the National league with 604 yards in 146 attempts.

CHICK DAVIES SUPPORTS ZONE CAGE DEFENSE

By ORLO ROBERTSON

Pittsburgh, Feb. 11 (AP)—Its none of his business but Chick Davies can't see why the basketball association of America, or any other group for that matter, should outlaw the zone defense.

The round, baldish coach of Duquesne's unbeaten five doesn't teach his boys the zone but he would if he thought it was a better way to win ball games.

Davies pointed out that the majority of high school coaches teach the zone defense and added: "I wouldn't say John Lawther's club at Penn State are uninteresting and he uses the zone exclusively."

"If those who oppose the zone defense would spend more time teaching their boys how to beat it, then there wouldn't be so much squawking," said Davies. "Of course I am not in favor of all this pressure for higher scores. I think we can have a better game of basketball if we stop going basket-crazy and concentrate on ball handling and smart play."

Skipping here and there through western Pennsylvania sports:

There are at least two brother acts in basketball. The three Knoche boys are at Washington and Jefferson and now that the Ironmen have signed Noble Jorgensen there's two from that family on the pro circuit team. ... It's a good bet that Nobel will do a lot more playing than Brother Roger. ... Chet Dembinski and Bill Melhinney generally are rated the top men on Westminster's five but take it from Coach Grover (Pappy) Washbaugh, Don Hettelston is vastly under-rated.

Duquesne, which returns to the grid wars this fall, hopes to renew relations with Pitt in 1948. ... And would like to use Pitt's stadium for one or two home games this fall says athletic director Jack Davis. ... Fritz Zivic insists he's sincere about retiring this time after losing to somebody in Mexico City ten days ago. ... Fritz can't even recall his opponent's name. ... Figures he had enough to do to understand the Spanish referee.

Ken Loeffler, one-time coach at Geneva and Yale and now directing the St. Louis pro Bombers, is still chuckling over this one. Ken, now abashed at saying what he thinks of officiating, was silent for a change when the referee called a foul on one of his men in a game with the Pittsburgh Ironmen. Suddenly the official rushed over, pointed his finger at the coach, and said "technical foul on you." Ken claimed he hadn't said word but a substitute near him leaned over and said sheepishly: "coach it was me"

Navy's Mighty Mites Tackle Mountaineers
Annapolis, Md., Feb. 11 (AP)—Navy's "mighty mites" are going to put to a severe test tomorrow evening the theory "the bigger they come the harder they fall."

The Middies are out to chop down to their size the West Virginia basketball five—undefeated in 12 games and a leader in the country. Only the Mountaineers and Duquesne are without defeat as the season swings into its last month.

The Navy, a peanut-sized outfit among today's skyscraping hoopsters, has earned top recognition in the east, at least, by winning all but one of a dozen games—the last nine in a row.

Coached by Ben Carnevale, in his first year at Navy, the Middies average three inches less than the conventional six feet while West Virginia's five goes for an average of six feet, three inches.

Louis Arrives At Panama City
Panama City, Feb. 11 (AP)—Joe Louis has arrived for tomorrow's exhibition here with a couple of his sparring partners. President Alfredo Aleman said the heavyweight champion would be at the resort village of Cerneno, about 40 miles out of the city, until fight time.

Louis' next stop on his Latin American tour is Lima, Peru, where he is scheduled to fight on Saturday.

Failure Of Busher Said Cause Of Sale
Arcadia, Calif., Feb. 11 (AP)—Louis B. Mayer's fabulous $5,000,000 racing stable will be virtually dissolved at a Hollywood-style auction February 27—and all, insiders say, because of Busher, greatest money-winning filly ($334,035) of all-time.

Close observers declare that Mayer's heart went out of racing when Busher failed to come back, and the evidence points that way.

Eagles Sign Ense And Blair Brown
Philadelphia, Feb. 11 (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football league have already signed 18 players for the 1947 season, the two latest being end Stan Ense and fullback Blair Brown.

County Baseball Meeting Thursday

The first of a series of meetings to complete the reorganization of the Adams County Baseball league for the coming season will be held at the fire engine house Thursday evening at 8 o'clock.

A number of communities throughout the county have already named their team managers and officers and at least eight teams are expected to be represented.

The meeting has been called by Roy Shanebrook, vice-president of last year's circuit.

BIG TESTS FOR MULES, LIONS

Philadelphia, Feb. 11 (AP)—Muhlenberg and Albright, pace-setters in the Middle Atlantic Basketball Conference face their stiffest tests this week.

Muhlenberg engages Lafayette, last year's loop titlist, in a game at Allentown Wednesday. The Mules overpowered Lafayette in their last meeting, but they did the same thing last year only to have the Maroon come back to defeat the Mules twice and win the Northern Division crown.

Albright's Western Division leaders take on fast-rising Lebanon Valley, which took over second place Saturday at Annville.

Meanwhile, Muhlenberg—which completed in the last two National invitation tournaments at Madison Square Garden—enhanced chances for a repeat performance by beating Gettysburg and Lehigh last week to win its fourth and fifth straight league battles.

Hergesheimer Back At Top Of Scoring
New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—"Phantom Phil" Hergesheimer, player-manager of the Philadelphia Rockets, has skyrocketed back to the top of the American Hockey league's individual scoring race, league statistics revealed today.

The 32-year-old winger picked up nine points in three games last week, including six in a single game, to regain the lead he relinquished to Indianapolis' Cliff Simpson a week ago. Simpson managed to collect only one goal and dropped to second place, seven points back of Hergesheimer who has racked up 72 points.

Johnny Holota and linemate Bob Carse of the Cleveland Barons are deadlocked at 64 points apiece for third place, one point back of Simpson. Holota paces the circuit in goal-getting with 39 and Carse in assists with 45.

May Appeal Loss Of Graziano License
New York, Feb. 11 (AP)—Rocky Graziano's manager and his attorney were scheduled to confer today to decide whether they will go to the courts in an effort to upset the revocation of the East Side middleweight's license by the state athletic commission.

Graziano lost his license last Friday when the commission, after a hearing, ruled Rocky was delinquent in not reporting a proffered $100,000 bribe. Graziano had testified he did not take the bribe offer seriously.

MILLIGAN MAY BE NEXT COACH FOR PITTSBURGH

By ELAINE KAHN

Pittsburgh, Feb. 11 (AP)—Wesley Fesler still lacked official word from Ohio State today that he was "in" as new football coach, but meanwhile he recommended Walter (Mike) Milligan as his successor at the University of Pittsburgh.

Milligan, 42-year-old Pitt graduate and a line coach at his Alma Mater for five years under the reign of Dr. John (Jock) Sutherland, apparently had wide alumni backing plus the personal blessings of Fesler. "If I go to Ohio State, I sincerely hope that Mike will be the next man here," Fesler declared today. "I think he's a real guy and would be a credit to the job."

Fesler paid tribute to Milligan's coaching ability saying: "Without him we wouldn't have been able to do half the job we did this year. The boys liked him and he's a grand person."

Fesler himself was in the somewhat embarrassing position of having accepted a job Ohio State officials said he wasn't "offered."

This, however, was regarded as a technicality that would be ironed out when Ohio State's boards of athletics and trustees get together in "four or five days" to make official the offer tendered Fesler by the school's athletic department heads last week.

Strangely enough, Milligan appeared not only the most likely but the only candidate mentioned for the Pitt gridiron post. Pitt officials said they had received only a few applications for the job.

Selection of Milligan, who assisted Henry Frka at Tulsa for five years before coming to Pitt with Fesler, would return the skyscraper university to its modern policy of hiring only graduate coaches.

The tradition was broken in 1943 by the surprise hiring of T-master Clark D. Shaughnessy.

Fesler's appointment in 1946 to succeed Shaughnessy caused some sub-rosa resentment among alumni who hoped to install a Pitt man but his earnestness, personality and ability to get the most of the least, won him wide popularity despite a mediocre won and lost record.

The expected loss of Fesler will put Pitt in the market for its fourth football coach in eight years. The coaching parade started in 1939 with the stormy resignation of Dr. Sutherland. He was succeeded by Charles Bowser who lasted four years and then gave way to Shaughnessy.

NEW MOVE FOR SUNDAY HOCKEY

Harrisburg, Feb. 11 (AP)—A new drive was under way today in the Legislature to legalize Sunday ice hockey and basketball games in Pennsylvania.

Under a bill introduced in the State Senate by Sen. Montgomery F. Crowe (R-Monroe), the games would be legalized after a referendum in the community concerned.

Once voters act affirmatively games would be permitted between the hours of 2 p. m. and 7 p. m.

The measure, patterned largely on the present Sunday baseball law, would provide that once a community voted on Sunday ice hockey or basketball, another election could not be held for five more years.

Must Sign Petitions
In order to have an election at least two per cent of the voters representing the largest vote polled at the last previous election must sign petitions calling for a referendum.

At present Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Hershey have ice hockey teams affiliated with the American ice hockey league and play their games on Saturday nights, and occasionally on a Wednesday night.

A professional basketball league was organized in Pennsylvania during the present season and games are now being played largely on Saturday nights. Philadelphia and Pittsburgh are also represented in a new professional basketball league.

A Sunday ice hockey bill failed of action in the 1945 Legislature.

Patterson Wins British Bantam

Manchester, England, Feb. 11 (AP)—Jackie Patterson, world flyweight champion from Scotland, has added the British bantamweight crown to his long list of titles. He knocked out the defending champion, Johnny King, in the seventh round of a scheduled 15-round bout here last night. Patterson weighed 118, King 117½.

Patterson also holds the empire and British flyweight crowns and the empire bantamweight title.

SAYS SALARIES WILL RUIN GAME
Philadelphia, Feb. 11 (AP)—General manager Herb Pennock of the Philadelphia Phillies predicts that current high baseball salaries will ruin the game if allowed to continue.

Herb remarked gloomily on his 53rd birthday yesterday that the Phils might go bankrupt in a year or two—if game attendance falls and player pay checks fail to deflate. He said he was speaking of salaries generally but that he had in mind particularly the $80,000 which he thought the Cleveland Indians were paying Feller, and the $65,000 and $60,000 which he figured New-houser and Williams would get from Detroit and Boston.

"Do you realize what such salaries will do to baseball?" asked Herb, who has a few holdout worries of his own—such as Ron Northey, Schoolboy Rowe, Emil Verban, and Tommy Hughes. "They will ruin it."

Gives Explanation
He had this explanation: "Under the new baseball rules passed last August when the players were making their bid for recognition, a major league club cannot reduce salaries more than 25 per cent in one year."

"For example if Feller—or for that matter if any other player in the majors—had a bad season, the most that player can be cut is 25 per cent. Suppose, for example, Williams drops to 300 in batting—or Feller wins only 10 games—something that can happen if Bob's arm goes bad or Ted is stopped by the 'Dyer Shift'—the most that either can be cut is 25 per cent."

"And suppose that attendance drops 50 per cent which it easily can, an owner can't cut salaries 50 per cent. He is left holding the bag."

Legion Plans To Enter Ball Loop

THE GARMENT OF EARTH
I never tire of the new scenes upon this wonderful earth. By day and night there are spectacles that challenge the imagination, leading us out of ourselves into the rapturous museum of natural life. What colors, what intricate formations, what balance, what indescribable beauty, in every direction that the eye may wander!

In tropic countries this color, and intricate formation of flower and leaf, is most amazing. Eternal partners to the sunshine and the emptying of the heavens in the form of rain and moisture. The Queen of Flowers, the orchid I have seen hanging from trees in smiling wonder. And among the designs of leaves that form the trees and semi-tropical shrubbery, there can be noted art of the highest order. How much of it is lost to the sight of many. How significant it is to the few!

To me, at least, every creation of Nature is a voice from the Eternal, every flower and leaf a poem from the Infinite Mind. To me God is Nature, and all the earth his Cathedral. And there we should offer up our thanksgiving and praise. The Garment of the Earth is God's covering, his blanket by day and night, fashioned in form as no man-made garment could ever be, no matter how exquisite in its approach to perfection.

The lover and revealer of Nature is the great minister, the great teacher, and the common denominator of us all! He is the interpreter of the Creator, as we all may be, if we choose, and are endowed with spiritual insight. The sea is both a song and a poem. And the night sky is a fabric of peace and hope. It is medicine to the soul. A single sight of its starry dome compels us to bow in humility and reverence.

The desert, without its covering of grass, still holds its note of beauty, for it "was planned that way!" It has silence, rhythm, and peace. And stars dance upon its cool surface at night. There is drama among the hills and mountains, and the forests are pungent with perfume. Rivers ripple, joyously sing their songs, by day and night, and their entertainment is continual.

There is no spot upon this Garment of Earth that does not have its distinction, that does not have its special whisper to the soul of man.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "The Sense of Wonder"

EXPECT BREAK IN COLD WAVE BY WEDNESDAY

(By The Associated Press)
With ice conditions hampering river traffic, highway crews fighting to keep roads open and 50,000 western Pennsylvania industrial workers idle because of a gas shortage, word came today that a definite break in the cold wave, now in its second week, may be expected by tomorrow.

Weather observers said the temperature would rise to near the thawing level today and would definitely go above freezing tomorrow. A shift of winds from north to westerly and later to south-southwest was expected to account for the break.

Forecasters warned, however, that more cold weather is in prospect for the latter part of the week.

Rivers Frozen

First interruption of river traffic because of the ice was reported between Midland, Pa., and Wheeling, W. Va., where the Ohio is frozen across at several points. Both the Allegheny and Monongahela are frozen at many places beyond the Pittsburgh pools but there were no reports of traffic suspensions.

The ice varies from one to 4.5 inches in thickness, with the heaviest reported on the Allegheny at Kittanning, Pa., and northward.

Observers said the ice condition was the worst since January, 1942, when a long cold wave froze ice five to 9.5 inches thick in the rivers.

Many Roads Closed

Northwestern Pennsylvania continued to battle mounting snow drifts and clogged highways in the wake of a blizzard-like storm that swept across that area and western New York Sunday night.

All secondary roads in six northwestern counties were closed and highway crews were concentrating on keeping main roads open to at least one-way traffic.

Both public and parochial schools were closed in Erie where eight-foot drifts were reported.

Volunteer workers to fight the Erie drifts were being recruited in McKean county, where low gas pressure was reported to have closed one school in Bradford and five in surrounding townships.

Oil operations were curtailed in the Bradford area, making 600 workers idle.

SENATE HEARS WHISKY GRAFT CHARGE HURLED

Harrisburg, Feb. 11 (AP)—Democratic charges of an "undercover graft of $1,000,000" in the sale of whisky to the state Liquor Control Board confronted that agency today in the state Legislature.

Made verbally on the Senate floor by Sen. John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland), Senate minority leader, after the board had been called a "one-man show" by another Democratic solon, the graft charges were promptly denied by Chairman Frederick T. Gelder.

"Naturally I can speak only for the years I have been connected with the Liquor Control Board," Gelder said in commenting on Dent's remarks. "During that time of over five years, I have every confidence there has not been one cent of graft to anyone."

Dent's Charges

Dent had declared from the Senate floor yesterday:

"Charges of favoritism have been made from this floor in the past and no one has ever answered the charges. I charge that an undercover graft of $1,000,000 was made out of the sale of Kinsey whisky and paid to someone."

Gelder, upon inquiry, said Kinsey whisky was a brand the board bought when stocks were short and "we were buying every gallon we could from anybody in the U. S. which our chemists reported was up to standard."

Dent spoke after Sen. Joseph M. Barr (D-Allegheny) asked Governor Duff to fill a vacancy on the board which has existed for six years, asserting the present agency is "a one-man show, a dictatorship."

Stuart Critically Ill

Naming Gelder as the "dictator," Barr said W. Searight Stuart, the second member, is unable to serve and then added: "This so-called board could hold its meetings in the nearest telephone booth, with Gelder making the motions, seconding himself and calling for the yeas and nays."

Stuart, named to the board in 1943, has been ill at his Carlisle home for several months and his physician, Dr. E. S. Kronenberg, Jr., yesterday described his condition as "critical."

WOULD CHANGE ESTATE LAWS

Harrisburg, Feb. 11 (AP)—Proposals for modernization of Pennsylvania's inheritance laws were before the state Legislature today.

The proposals, introduced as bills last night in the Legislature, were sponsored by a bi-partisan committee headed by Rep. Thomas H. Lee (R-Philadelphia).

The bills would:

Increase the surviving spouse's allowance, in an intestate proceeding, from $5,000 to $10,000, cutting off inheritance by those more remote than nieces, uncles and aunts.

Clarify and further safeguard as to execution by a mark.

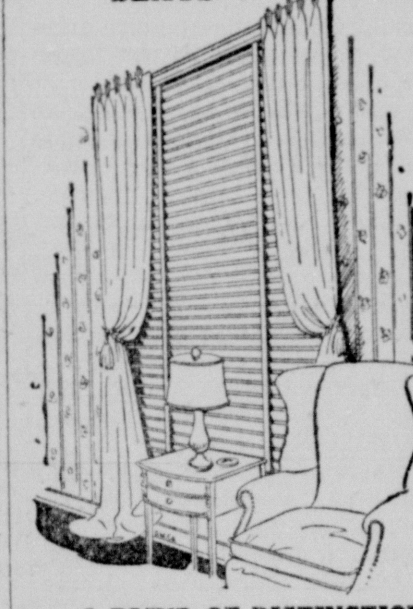

Save charitable gifts if the testator makes a new will and dies within 30 days.

Abolish the lien of a legacy on real estate where it is $100 or less.

Closely restrict the termination of trusts.

TWO CONVICTS STILL AT LARGE

Philadelphia, Feb. 11 (AP)—A murderer and a bank robber, two of five desperate long-term convicts who scaled a 35-foot wall of the Holmesburg prison, remained at large today and police broadcast a nationwide alert for their capture.

The fugitives escaped yesterday after stabbing a guard and using him as a shield while they fled across snow-covered fields bordering the jail. Three were recaptured within a few hours.

But William (Slick Willie) Sutton, 46-year-old bank robber, and Frederick Tenuto, 30, who had been serving a term for second degree murder, eluded a police dragnet.

It was the first successful break engineered at Holmesburg since its construction in 1894.

Hardened Criminals

Warden Robert J. Beveridge said the five escapees—Clarence Klinedinst, 38; David Aikens, 41, and Spencer Waldon, 37, are now back in their cells — are "dangerous, hardened criminals who have spent most of their adult lives behind bars."

Sutton is described as the most notorious and "possibly the most dangerous," the warden said. Yesterday's escape was his sixth. Tenuto had made two unsuccessful escape attempts previously.

All except Waldon participated in one of Pennsylvania's most daring jail breaks on April 3, 1945 — the tunnel escape from the Eastern State penitentiary. They had dug a 99-foot tunnel, over a 13 months' period, across the prison's exercise yard and under the wall.

Philadelphia, Feb. 11 (AP)—Col. John H. Fye, former U. S. representative at Prague in the expulsion movement of the Sudeten Germans from Czechoslovakia, is the new district executive of the eastern Pennsylvania Military District, Second Army. He succeeds Col. Holmes G. Paulin who has been assigned to an Asiatic post.

SCHOOL BOARD

Dr. Putman said he believed the program would have to be expanded, with greater facilities and more supervision, and with some phases of the program removed from the schools.

"We feel that the community ought to support such a permanent program by taxation," he added. "It would be money well-spent."

Need Finances

Dr. Putman and others suggested that the borough council might enter into the financial picture. Money received from parking meters was mentioned.

Mrs. Scott said she believed that it would not take long to educate the public to the need for a fuller recreation program and that their financial support would be forthcoming.

Superintendent of Schools Lloyd C. Keefauver said that "finances are the big thing." He said that the only thing the schools could do now was to offer use of school facilities. "Because of the debt limit, the school board cannot even build a junior-senior high school, which has been under consideration for years," he added.

Need Community Building

"We need a community building."

to house the town government and the recreation program." Superintendent Keefauver declared. "It is easy to lay out a plan, but difficult to get finances. We should have a building with pool tables, bowling alleys, reading room, and a swimming pool."

School board members agreed that the young people do not want a recreation center at a school, but want a place centrally located downtown for their dances and other recreations.

The school board committee agreed to make a study of plans and meet with whatever other committees are named in this recreational move.

TALK FIRST, THEN VOTE IS CONGRESS RULE

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington, (AP)—Sitting outside Washington—if you haven't been following the news closely—you may think:

What about less talk and a little more action from Congress? Why doesn't it do something?

Congress came back to Washington a month ago, talking about cutting taxes and putting curbs on labor unions.

It's still talking. It hasn't passed one law on unions and it hasn't cut taxes one penny.

Answer Is Simple

But the answer is simple: If Congress is going to pass any laws that mean anything, it had better talk about them first.

Take labor laws, for example: When Congress opened in January, the capitol jumped with talk about curbing unions. Every day, it seemed, everyone and his brother popped up with bunches of bills to take away the power of unions. So all the labor bills were dumped into the House and Senate Labor Committees, which have started hearings.

The men who wrote the bills, businessmen, union leaders and others all will be going before the committees to say what they think should, or shouldn't be done. This will go on maybe another five weeks.

Then Committee Works

Then the committee members will get together, go over the bills and the testimony of the witnesses, and agree on one or more bills.

Then they'll send them to the House and Senate for a vote. Those bills, whether they're passed or not, at least will have had some thought put into them. And—before voting on them—the full Congress will have had time to do some calm thinking.

The same is true of taxes. Some of the top Republicans came back in January, full of talk about cutting income taxes 20 per cent for everyone.

But that would have meant a big cut for the rich men and a tiny cut for the poor men.

When they had time to realize that, many people inside and outside Congress yelled out against a flat 20 per cent cut for all.

So now—after some committee hearings—any tax cut may be bigger, proportionately, for the poor man than the rich man. Meanwhile, Congress is going through its regular daily grind of other work: A whole flock of committee hearings on problems less sensational than taxes and labor.

What's happening now is what happens in every Congress after it starts a new session: A lot of talk, a lot of ideas batted around, and then, after months of talk and work, the voting on bills to make them laws.

This Congress will do its big voting job in the spring.

NO TRAPPING BEAVER HERE

Harrisburg, Feb. 11 (AP)—An open season on beavers gets underway in Pennsylvania Saturday, and will continue until March 1 in all but twenty of the Commonwealth's 67 counties.

The State Game commission pointed out that twenty counties are closed to beaver trapping. They are Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Bedford, Blair, Cambria, Cumberland, Fayette, Franklin, Fulton, Greene, Huntingdon, Indiana, Juniata, Mifflin, Perry, Somerset, Washington, and Westmoreland.

In all other counties the season limit is two beaver per trapper, and one person may set, tend or operate only ten traps.

No Trapping On Dams

The Game commission warned that no trapping will be permitted at dams posted by the commission, and traps must not be set on the structure of any beaver dam, or house, or within 25 feet of the waterline on the structure of either a beaver dam or house.

Furthermore, non-residents will not be permitted to trap the animals at any time.

Other regulations fixed by the Game commission require that tags must be kept above ice or waterline to facilitate identification without disturbing traps, and use of steel traps having teeth on the jaw are ruled unlawful.

Pelts must be tagged within ten days of the close of the season, and no pelts may be possessed, sold, or otherwise disposed of unless properly tagged.

SENATOR WILEY SEES HEADLESS NATION IN WAR

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, painting a terrifying picture of what could happen if an A-bomb wiped out the Washington government, wants to establish a stand-by system for the preservation of Democracy by means of a "television" Congress.

He wants the states connected by a network which could substitute for the physical assembly of the Nation's leaders, pointing out that meetings would be too dangerous even if they were not actually killed at the outset. He also thinks all states should adopt the interim appointive system under which governors could fill vacancies immediately if the leaders were killed, so Congress would always exist to check "any would-be-dictator-minded executive."

Wiley, chairman of the Senate committee, thinks his plan is needed to supplement President Truman's own ideas on the Presidential succession.

Looks Into the Future

Since a desire to peer into the future is one of man's most persistent emotions, it's always interesting to follow the leads which such ideas suggest.

First, what is the relative likelihood of such a war?

Although it is considered impossible these days to express doubt that the United Nations will work some realists admit that either communism will prove a false lure, the world will move far enough to the left politically to eliminate the sharpest differences between communism and western economic practices, or there will be war, sometime.

If war does come, will it be sufficiently soon so that present plans for its conduct will not become obsolete?

Year of Old-Style War

If present world unrest should produce a war its conduct, at least for the first years will follow established practice. If war develops after the nations have spent 10, 15 or 20 years healing the wounds of the last one and developing new weapons, it would almost amount to a new experience.

Any future war, whether atomic or not, will produce insufferable conditions, only a nation led by madmen could start it, and therefore, the world can no longer sit idly by while such men get control anywhere.

If safety on that score is not achieved, the United States will need a national defense system so perfectly organized, its members so well trained, that every man can step immediately into the job of the man above him without any break in the overall rhythm.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

Chicago, (AP)—Circuit Judge Robert J. Dunne says he would like to have "nosy interferers" and "meddling in-laws" brought into his court along with the principals in some divorce cases before him.

"If I could figure out a way to get jurisdiction over these nosy interferers," he said, "they'll go to the county jail."

ROYAL PRISONER IN CAMP DESPAIR

Darmstadt, Germany, Feb. 11 (AP)—Queen Victoria's great grandson ate a meal of watery soup from a tin pail today and counted himself luckier than most of the 11,240 hungry former Nazis in "Camp Despair."

"After 20 months imprisonment under Hitler and 21 months under the Americans," said trail, wizened Prince Philip von Hessen, "I have learned how to take it."

In a crowded former coal bin of the headquarters of the Darmstadt German civil internment enclosure, dubbed "Camp Despair" by its inmates, the 50-year-old nobleman sat on his wooden bunk and listed these gifts of fortune:

1. Because of his seniority as a prisoner, he sleeps with a few score others in the warm basement of a building instead of an icy canvas tent like thousands.

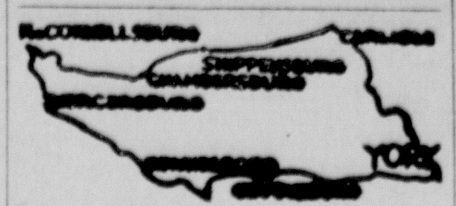

2. Called as a witness at the Dachau trial of Flossenburg concentration camp guards, he spent a month in the Dachau hospital "where the food was very good, for a change."

3. U. S. Ambassador Robert Murphy recently relayed a letter to him from his parents-in-law, former King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy and his ex-queen, now living in exile in Alexandria, Egypt. It was the first news he had received from them in many months.

The Darmstadt enclosure, ringed by barbed wire and armed outposts, is a grim answer to claims by anti-American propagandists that "de-Nazification is a farce" in the U. S. zone.

Early experiments in dive bombing were conducted by U. S. Marines in 1936 in Haiti.

What About YOUR PAY CHECK AND ADVERTISING?

WHAT OTHERS THINK

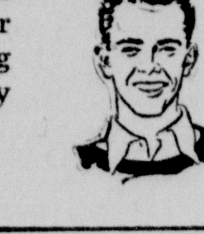

SECRETARY—I work in a company that advertises a grocery product. That's what has made our office grow from 17 people to 27. I've been promoted twice in 3 years. Advertising helped.

FARMER—My prices depend on supply and demand. Good advertising seems to make folks buy more goods. So I guess in the long run advertising helps my produce find a ready market at a good price.

PLUMBER—Since I've been advertising my shop I've added 2 men. It's helped my business and my income all right.

SALESMAN—Ads do the same kind of work salesmen do—sell more goods. My company's advertising certainly increases my volume of business. That means both safety and more income to me.

SHIPPING CLERK—When the ads run, we are busy and happy. When our outfit cuts down on advertising, first thing you know our business slacks off and they have to cut down on help.

Perhaps You've Never Heard It Explained This Simply Before

YOU'LL agree that the advertising you see and hear has one main purpose . . . to sell goods and services.

When a company sells more goods or services, there's just naturally more work to be done in that company. That means more jobs, better jobs, more security, more chance for promotion.

What's more, the mines and mills and farms and businesses that supply that firm also have more work to do. So do the transportation lines, dealers, stores, etc., who handle the goods. So they have more and better jobs as well.

Today producing goods is a relatively simple problem. In many fields, selling the goods is the big job. And advertising is one of the lowest-cost methods of selling goods on a big scale . . . a scale that makes more jobs and plenty of them.

So whether or not you work for a company that advertises, remember—that modern method of mass personal selling you see and hear everywhere, is important to your job.

It's often the spark plug that keeps the motor humming—full speed, full power. And that means more security, greater opportunity for you—and for yours!

Other Ways Advertising Helps You:

1. Brings you better goods for less money.
2. Makes shopping more pleasant and easier.
3. Has given us the world's highest standard of living.

PHONE GIRLS
HAD 3,315,000
CALLS IN 1946

Over 3,315,000 telephone calls were handled at the Gettysburg telephone exchange during the last year C. A. Bixler, district manager for The United Telephone Company said today. Manager Bixler said that this was an all-time high for the local telephone exchange and pointed out that it was an increase of over 400,000 calls above the previous record set in 1945.

Telephones in service in the Gettysburg exchange area reached 2,351 at the end of the year, an increase of ninety-six for 1946.

At present there are 240 applicants awaiting telephone service in the Gettysburg area. A reduction in the list of deferred applicants is expected this year if new cable, switchboards and other scarce equipment items on order for Gettysburg are received.

Shortage of Equipment

"The entire telephone industry has been hampered by lack of adequate equipment during the period of its most rapid growth," Manager Bixler said. "During the war all new telephone facilities went to the Armed Forces, with the result that telephone equipment manufacturers have been faced with the problem of trying to catch up on a nationwide five year backlog of equipment needs during a period of raw material shortages.

"The most ambitious expansion program in the history of The United Telephone Company is planned for 1947. Completion of the program depends to a large extent on equipment deliveries. Much of the apparatus on order is currently scheduled by manufacturers for delivery late this year," Bixler said.

The 100th anniversary of the birth of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone will be observed March 3 by the local company and all other telephone companies throughout the nation. Bell was born March 3, 1847 at Edinburgh, Scotland, and 29 years later invented the telephone.

THEY GOT OUT OF THE CHINESE
ARMY AT LEAST

By HAL BOYLE
New York, (AP)—This little tale is one you don't have to believe. I don't myself.

But it is a legend among the army transport pilots who used to ferry Chinese troops in the Far East. Some fliers insist it is true.

Hauling Chiang Kai-shek's troops wasn't a pleasant duty for anybody concerned. These Chinese soldiers were ignorant city coolies or bewildered farm boys—most of them not mad at anybody and more interested in a rice bowl than the war.

The American fliers felt sorry for them. But they didn't like carrying them because they messed up the planes. Many got airsick before the wheels came up.

Loser Really Lost

They had no idea of plane travel and practiced certain little idiosyncrasies that drove the American crews to the fringe of reason. For example, one pilot, smelling smoke, rushed back from the controls to find his happy chattering passengers seated around a small fire they had started on the floor of the plane. They liked their rice cooked.

They also liked to gamble. Many veteran C-47 jockeys swear that the winners on occasion picked up the loser and tossed him out the plane door amid general Chinese laughter. It was certainly a sure way to get out of the army.

And that brings us to our tall story, probably dreamed up by a tired co-pilot bumping "the hump."

A plane heavily loaded with Chinese soldiers was flying over rugged mountainous terrain. Suddenly the plane developed trouble. The mountains began to get closer. The ship with losing altitude.

Only Freight Was Passengers

"We've got to get rid of some weight fast or we'll crash," the pilot told his crew. "There isn't a place to land."

"There's no freight to chuck out," said a sergeant. "All we're carrying is passengers."

"I know," replied the pilot, "but we're going to ram into a peak in another few minutes if we don't lighten this ship."

"By the way," the sergeant pointed out, "I just checked and there's only one parachute aboard."

The pilot said something unprintable.

"I'll see what I can do," said the sergeant. "Hell, there's no use in everybody getting killed."

He went back into the plane, lined up the Chinese troops before the open door and gestured for them to jump out. They were interested in his game but couldn't quite make up their mind to play. None would go out.

"Hell!" said the sergeant. He buckled on the only parachute—a western device whose function the Chinese had no way of knowing. Then the sergeant took off his trousers, tied a knot in each leg end and holding the pants by the belt swished them back and forth overhead. They billowed with air as he bent his knees as if to jump.

The Chinese grinned. They got the sergeant's idea. They could float through the air with the greatest of ease if they followed his example. Off came their trousers. They tied the knots and lined up in front of the door.

But still none would go first. No—their ancient courtesy decreed that the American visitor should have the honor of preceding them.

"Hell again!" said the frustrated sergeant. "I knew this would happen."

No Complaints

But the plane was almost scraping the peaks. He had to act.

"Follow me!" he shouted, and holding his pants overhead leaped out. As soon as he disappeared from their sight he pulled the ripcord of his parachute—his own ticket to safety.

One by one the docile passengers—true to his orders—jumped out after him, each clinging to his knotted pants.

The lightened plane rose and went on. And the passengers? No complaints have been heard from them. At least they got out of the Chinese army. Or so goes the tale as I heard it.

BRITISH EMPIRE
HIT BY SEVERE HEART ATTACK

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The British empire, already wasting away at the extremities, has suffered a heart attack.

The coal which made one tiny island different from all others in the world is not coming out of the ground from Britain's newly nationalized mines, the looms which for a hundred years wove the web of empire are idle, and the furnaces which forged the steel backbone for half a world are closed.

A member of parliament called it "the gravest crisis in our history," and was not challenged by fellow-members who had watched while Hitler assembled his invasion fleet in 1940.

Serious Problem

For this adversity, though precipitated by an unusual cold spell on top of already strained supplies, is not a mere immediate emergency to be survived. It involves the necessity of concrete solution of a problem which has been growing for a quarter of a century in an economy badly strained by two world wars and subjected to rapidly changing conditions.

There are a host of bewildering factors involved, but, at the core seems to lie the question of whether it is economically possible, in the middle of the 20th century, to funnel the raw materials of vast areas into one tiny center for manufacture and reshipment in the form of finished goods.

Britain's planners have been operating on the theory that it is. They have been trying to compromise with an upsurge of expensive socialistic ideas among labor while still forced to live by the slogan of "export or die."

Labor Government Incapable

Some in Britain blame the coal crisis on the socialist nationalization program, with the old cry that government operation goes hand in hand with inefficiency. But it is hardly that simple. Actually, the labor government has merely proved incapable of solving a problem which it inherited, which has been approaching a crisis for years, and which no one else has been able to solve.

ASK EXTENSION OF FEDERAL AID

Washington, Feb. 11 (AP)—The social Security Board asked Congress today to jack up federal old-age payments and to extend their benefits to the 23,000,000 workers not now covered.

The report, submitted by Federal Security Administrator Watson B. Miller, also urged establishment of:

1. A federally-aided health and disability insurance system and

2. Federal-state help for all needy persons, regardless of the "reason for need or place of residence."

The proposals have White House blessing, bestowed in advance in President Truman's budget and economic messages to Congress. The board report asked prompt action, saying:

"For a people, as for an individual, it is prudent to provide in good times against adversities that almost surely will arise sooner or later."

The board repeated its recommendations, first advanced on January 19, for extending unemployment compensation to small firms employing one or more workers and

Seek To Identify
Amnesia Victim

Irwin, Pa., Feb. 11 (AP)—Authorities today sought to identify a young man who said he was in the Army Air Corps in the war but who cannot remember his name and address. He wandered into police headquarters yesterday and asked help.

He remembered little, he said, before the time he suddenly found himself eating a bowl of chili in a diner on Route 30.

This much he recalled from his military record: He was discharged at Indiantown Gap, Pa., December 13, 1946; he saw European service with the 314th Trooper Carrier, 52nd Wing, 62nd Squadron.

Police, who took the youth to Westmoreland county hospital for observation, gave this description: About 20 years old, five feet 10 inches tall, about 160 pounds, blue eyes, "crew" haircut, and wearing a brown hat, red knit scarf, brown suede jacket, blue sweater, khaki shirt, gray plaid sport trousers and four-buckle galoshes.

Ask More Time On Highway Fund Plan

Harrisburg, Feb. 11 (AP)—A legislative committee studying local and state financing of highway construction and maintenance sought two more years of life today before making any recommendations on the sharing of the commonwealth's gasoline levies.

Sen. John G. Snowden (R-Lycoming), chairman of the committee of the assembly's joint state government commission making the study, offered a bill to give the groups until the 1949 session of the legislature to make a report.

The committee received a $50,000 appropriation from the 1945 legislature and authority to delve into all the factors involved in highway construction. It retained the Brookings Institution of Washington, D. C., and other agencies to make a survey but so far has not made public their reports.

TEACHER GETS

figures in a letter to the board: high school, present value, $400,000, present insurance, $200,000 Meade school, present value, $150,000, insurance, $40,000; Lincoln school, value, $135,000, insurance $40,000; High street school, value, $55,000, insurance, $20,000.

School board members agreed on the high school figures, but said the valuation on the other schools was placed too high.

The board authorized the ordering of a carload of coal. Meade and High street schools have enough for the balance of the month; coal will be needed at the high school and Lincoln school may be able to finish the year on its present supply. Superintendent Keefeaver reported.

Commencement Program

The board voted to purchase an audiometer at a price of $240. It took official cognizance of the recent vote of the high school senior class for a single commencement ceremony combining the graduation and baccalaureate and left the engagement of a speaker to Superintendent Keefeaver. A letter was received from C. E. Bilheimer, director of athletics at Gettysburg college, thanking the school board for the use of the high school gymnasium by the college basketball team during the time the Plank memorial gymnasium was being used to house G.T's.

Superintendent Keefeaver reported that the school assessment figure had been fixed by the county commissioners at $2,941,755. The board reduced the rental for the high school auditorium from $50 to $35.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $47,302.38 as of February 8, and a balance in the sinking fund on January 11 of $2,168.15. The cafeteria report showed month's expenses of $672.20 and a balance of $345.92.

Housing Authority Urged On Penna.

Harrisburg, Feb. 11 (AP)—A State Housing Authority, with broad powers to investigate the current housing shortage and buy up real estate for new projects was proposed for Pennsylvania's house-hungry citizens today.

Municipalities would be permitted to request the authority to determine the extent of their respective house shortages and acquire—by eminent domain, if necessary—land and materials to build new homes.

A bill to set up such authority was introduced in the State House of representatives last night by Rep. H. G. Andrews (D-Cambria), House minority leader. It would also permit the authority to issue tax-exempt bonds to finance its housing program.

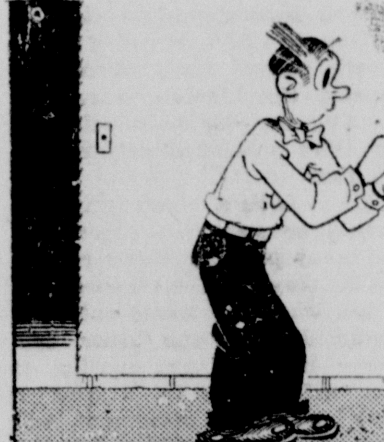

The authority would consist of the state treasurer, auditor general, secretary of internal affairs, secretary of property and supplies, the speaker of the house, president pro tempore of the Senate and three other citizens.

EARTH TO THE MOON

By Jules Verne

Chapter 10

The same evening Barbicane and his companions returned to Tampa Town; and Murchison, the engineer, re-embarked on board the Tampico for New Orleans. His object was to enlist an army of workmen, and to collect together the greater part of the materials.

The nature of the soil having been carefully examined, by means of repeated borings, the work of excavation was fixed for the 4th of November.

On that day Barbicane called together his foremen and addressed them as follows: "You are well aware, my friends, of the object with which I have assembled you together in this wild part of Florida. Our business is to construct a cannon measuring nine feet in its interior diameter, six feet thick, and with a stone revetment of nineteen and a half feet in thickness. We have, therefore, a well of sixty feet in diameter to dig down to a depth of nine hundred feet. This great work must be completed within eight months, so that you have 2,543,400 cubic feet of earth to excavate in 255 days; that is to say, in round numbers, 2,000 cubic feet per day. I reckon for its accomplishment upon your courage as much as upon your skill."

At eight o'clock in the morning the first stroke of the pickaxe was struck upon the soil of Florida; and from that moment that prince of tools was never inactive for one moment in the hands of the excavators. The gangs relieved each other every three hours.

At the expiration of the first month the well had attained the depth assigned for that lapse of time, namely, 112 feet. This depth was doubled in December, and trebled in January, and on the 10th of June, twenty days before the expiration of the period fixed by Barbicane, the well, lined throughout with its facing of stone, had attained the depth of 900 feet. At the bottom the masonry rested thirty feet in thickness, while on the upper portion it was level with the surrounding soil.

During the eight months which were employed in the work of excavation the preparatory works of the casting had been carried on simultaneously with extreme rapidity. A stranger arriving at Stones Hill would have been surprised at the spectacle offered to his view.

At 600 yards from the well, and circularly arranged around it as a central point, rose 1,200 reverberating ovens, each six feet in diameter, and separated from each other by an interval of three feet. The circumference occupied by these 1,200 ovens presented a length of two miles. Being all constructed on the same plan, each with its high quadrangular chimney, they produced a most singular effect.

Each of these furnaces contained nearly 140,000 pounds weight of metal. These furnaces, constructed of fireproof brick were especially adapted for burning pit coal, with a flat bottom upon which the iron bars were laid. This bottom, inclined at an angle of 25 degrees, allowed the metal to flow into the receiving troughs; and the 1,200 converging trenches carried the molten metal down to the central well.

The day following that on which the works of the masonry and boring had been completed, Barbicane set to work upon the central mould. His object now was to raise within the center of the well, and with a coincident axis, a cylinder 900 feet high, and nine feet in diameter, which should exactly fill up the space reserved for the bore of the Columbiad. This cylinder was composed of a mixture of clay and sand, with the addition of a little hay and straw. The space left between the mould and the masonry was intended to be filled up by the molten metal, which would thus form the walls six feet in thickness. This cylinder, in order to maintain its equilibrium, had to be bound by iron bands, and firmly fixed at certain intervals by cross-clamps fastened into the stone lining; after the castings these would be buried in the block of metal, leaving no external projection.

The casting was to take place at twelve o'clock precisely. The previous evening each furnace had been charged with 114,000 pounds weight of metal in bars disposed crossways to each other, so as to allow the hot air to circulate freely between them. At daybreak the 1,200 chimneys vomited their torrents of flame into the air, and the ground was agitated with dull tremblings. On a signal given by a cannon-shot each furnace was to give vent to the molten iron and completely to empty itself. These arrangements made, foremen and workmen waited the preconcerted moment with an impatience mingled with a certain amount of emotion.

Barbicane and his colleagues, perched on a neighboring eminence, assisted at the operation. In front of them was a piece of artillery ready to give fire on the signal from the engineer. Some minutes before midday the first dribbles of metal began to flow; the reservoirs filled little by little; and by the time that the whole melting was completely accomplished, it was kept in abeyance for a few minutes in order to facilitate the separation of foreign substances.

Twelve o'clock struck! A gunshot suddenly pealed forth and shot its flame into the air. Twelve hundred melting-troughs were simultaneously opened and twelve hundred fiery serpents crept toward the central well, unrolling their incandescent curves. There, down they plunged with a terrific noise into a depth of 900 feet. It was an exciting and a magnificent spectacle. The ground trembled, while these molten waves, launching into the sky their wreaths of smoke, evaporated the moisture of the mould and hurled it upward through the vent-holes of the stone lining in the form of dense vapor-clouds. These artificial clouds unrolled their thick spirals to a height of 1,000 yards into the air.

May Get Substitute For Sen. Vandenberg

Washington, Feb. 11 (AP)—President Truman was said today to be considering asking one of three Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations committee to substitute for Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), as an adviser to Secretary of State Marshall at Moscow.

The three Republicans mentioned by Democratic colleagues aware of the plan are Senators H. Alexander Smith of New Jersey, Bourke B.

Hickenloop of Iowa and Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. of Massachusetts. Discussions point to Smith as the most likely choice.

Vandenberg, who served with Senator Connally (D-Tex.), as an adviser to former secretary James F. Byrnes, has said he does not want to go to the opening of the foreign ministers conference next month. He indicated, however, he would answer any "S.O.S." if the State Department needs his help later.

Friends say the Michigan senator thus far has made no recommendation to Mr. Truman for a substitute.

Salem, Ore., (AP)—Sen. Allan Carson introduced a bill into the state Senate to revamp a law which he said reflects upon attorneys. A phrase in the existing law says the court shall appoint "some discreet person or attorney." Carson wants it to read "attorney or other discreet person."

Letter Writing---A Lost Art

By Leighton C. Taylor

corded due recognition. To the better class of people—the educated class—we are indebted for these comprehensive and edifying essays. Letters emanating from the uneducated and illiterate usually were written by so-called professional scribes or letter-writers.

Bacon said: "Writing maketh an exact man;" and an examination of the letters, documents, and other papers which have come down to us from public men and private individuals, in their own handwriting, confirm Bacon's observation. They are fine examples of pure English, written with due regard for clarity and style, and free from the monotony of repetition and involved construction so much in evidence today.

Aids Public Speaker

And this exactness, acquired through much laborious writing of the language, proved invaluable to the public speaker. He came to the platform with his thoughts marshaled and in order, and his remarks could be recorded or reported verbatim with little or no revision. Today, with dictation the vogue, the stuff that comes off the typewriter, and from the platform, is, generally speaking, garbled and involved, and any revision or polishing is a mechanical and impersonal operation on the part of the amanuensis or reporter.

The telephone, too, has played its part in the passing of the accomplished letter-writer. Personal conversations by telephone have largely superseded the personal letter, and only matters required to be of record are, as a rule, reduced to writing in business establishments.

A well known literary critic and wit comments facetiously, that reading the product of our current letter-writers as compared with that of another period, gives one the impression of a truck falling down stairs.

Washington An Example

Lack of space permits only a few excerpts from famous letters of the past:

To men of affairs, in this day and age of hurry scurry, and hustle and bustle, it is not easily understandable how important personages, in the early history of our country, bearing heavy responsibilities, could devote so much time, thought, and care to the writing of letters. The mere mechanics of the art were, in themselves, a seemingly laborious task.

Washington is a notable example in this regard. On June 15, 1775, at Philadelphia, the Second Continental Congress unanimously appointed him "General and Commander-in-Chief of the Army of the United Colonies." And, with this almost insurmountable assignment before him, he took the time, on June 18, 1775, to write to his wife at Mount Vernon, (his "Dear Patsy," as he called her), informing her of the stupendous task that had been placed upon his shoulders. He wrote, in part, as follows:

Time To Write Wife

"You may believe me, My dear Patsy, when I assure you, in the most solemn manner, that, so far from seeking this appointment, I used every endeavor within my power to avoid it, not only from my unwillingness to part with you and the family, but from a consciousness of its being a trust too great for my capacity; and that I should enjoy more real happiness in one month with you at home than I have the more distant prospect of finding abroad, if my stay were to be seven times seven years."

On June 23, 1775, amid much eclat, with blowing of horns and a cavalcade of soldiers and statesmen escorting him to the city limits, Washington left Philadelphia for his journey to Boston to assume his command; but in the midst of it all he sat down and wrote as follows to his beloved Martha:

"My dearest Patsy:

"As I am within a few minutes of leaving this city, I would not think of departing from it without dropping you a line, especially as I do not know whether it may be in my power to write you again till I get to the camp in Boston. I go, fully trusting in that Providence which has been more bountiful to me than I deserve, and in full confidence of a happy meeting with you sometime this fall. x x x x I return an unalterable affection for you, which neither time nor distance can change. x x x x With the utmost truth and sincerity.

Your Entire,
GEORGE WASHINGTON."

Letters From History

Another writer of matchless and immortal letters was Abigail Smith Adams, wife of that sturdy patriot, John Adams. For 25 years her facile pen drew vivid pictures of the stirring events through which she lived. The letters to her husband during his absence in Congress, and at his diplomatic posts abroad, are a splendid running commentary on those dramatic times.

Abigail is well remembered by every school-boy and girl as our only First Lady who had the temerity to hang her wash in the famous East Room of the White House, then known as the Presidential Mansion.

Gave Invasion Story

Nor must we fail to call attention to the letters of the popular and sprightly Dolly Madison, written in the Presidential Mansion while the British Fleet, in the War of 1812, was advancing on Washington by way of Chesapeake Bay. To her we are indebted for an on-the-spot description of the panic which prevailed in the City of Washington pending and during the invasion of the British, and the burning by them of the Capitol. In a letter to her sister she tells how she saved Stuart's portrait of Washington, that hung in the Mansion, by cutting the canvas from its frame and carrying it across the Potomac to safety in Virginia.

Other memorable letters are John Andre's pathetic appeal to Washington to be shot like a soldier, rather than be hanged as a spy. That of Colonel William Barret Travis to the people of Texas, dated February 24, 1836. Colonel Travis and his command fought their last-ditch fight against the Mexican General, Santa Anna, on March 6, 1836, from within the Old Alamo Mission in San Antonio, Texas. Refusing all surrender overtures, he and his entire command perished, but before he died Colonel Travis wrote the most heroic letter in American history. It tells the story of the Alamo better than ten thousand words could do, and is one of the priceless treasures of the Lone Star State.

Lincoln's Masterpiece

Lincoln's letter to a Mrs. Bixby, of Boston, who lost five sons in the Civil War, is among the most quoted of his writings. The original hangs on the walls of Oxford University, England, where it is cherished as a model of compassion, and a masterpiece of pure English. It was written by the hand of a man who understood great problems as well as small, the heartbreak of a nation, and the heartbreak of a lone mother.

Of all our public men, of the quill pen period, Jefferson, perhaps, carried on the most voluminous correspondence. He apparently, exercised the greatest care in his letter-writing, yet his output was prodigious.

Thousands of letters, ranging from fifteen to three thousand words, written by the hands of their authors, are to be found in our libraries and other depositories. Letters rich in drama—letters of sacrifice—letters of patriotism—letters of courage and despair—letters of treachery—letters from the scaffold—letters from the battlefield—letters of victory and defeat—letters breathing the American spirit of liberty and independence—letters, ALL OF THEM, rich in the tradition of America.

Humor In The Mail Bag

It might be interesting and amusing to pass, briefly, from the more or less sublime, to the lower levels of contemporary letter-writing. Below I shall quote one or two letters, together with some excerpts from others, received by Uncle Sam in his daily mail:

First is a letter from a taxpayer, who is concerned with his income tax problems, addressed to the Collector of Internal Revenue.

Dear Sir: The enclosed form, on which I am asked to make a record of my income for the last fiscal year, I am returning with my respects and my deepest appreciation of this subtle form of flattery.

I was particularly impressed by its resurrection of old forms and figures of English speech, such as compensation from outside sources, "net profit received," "income from rents," "interest on bank deposits," etc.

One question I got a great laugh out of was, "Were you, during the taxable year, supporting in your household one or more persons closely related to you?"

Boy, that's a honey. Say, you would be surprised. There are so many persons closely related to me staying at my house that I am what you would call surrounded. Only the other day, three more distant cousins of my wife's blew in, making a new high for the movement. And one of them brought a friend.

Too Many Dependents

For the last four years my house has been full of strangers, all claiming to be cousins or aunts, or something. I can't identify half of them; and what burned me up was when my wife's Uncle Jerry, who has been living with us a year, slapped me on the back the other day and asked, "Haven't I seen you some place before?"

The blank says it will allow me $400 for each dependent rela-

FATHER SAVES FIVE CHILDREN

Pittsburgh, Feb. 11 (AP)—Five members of a family were in Braddock General hospital today, one of them in a serious condition after the father, a Swissvale steelworker convalescing from a mill injury, dashed through flames to rescue the children.

Charles P. McFarland, 34, was asleep when the fire broke out yesterday, apparently from a gas stove. Also asleep were his wife, Mary, 35, mother of seven and expecting an eighth child soon; and their three youngest children, Eileen, 4; Mary Pat, 2, and William, 1. The older children were at school.

Awakened by the smoke, McFarland helped his wife and carried two children to safety through the rapidly-spreading flames. Then returning for Eileen, he found the doorway blocked by flames. He carried Eileen, her clothes blazing, to a balcony and dropped her down into snow; then raced down stairs through the flames.

Eileen, uninjured by the fall, suffered bad burns. The father and the other two children also had painful burns but are believed out of danger. Mrs. McFarland escaped injury.

tive, and I would say that the government is over-pricing them, as I would trade the entire lot for $11.00 and throw in a pair of bicycle pants and a magic lantern. (Two of my wife's aunts you can have for the asking.)

The blank also asks me to "describe your business, as provided in Item No. 2," and I am glad to answer, "lousy, Sir, lousy." And it asks me to "enter on line one of schedule A, my total receipts for 1946." I wish you fellows would stop joking. Fun is fun, but enough is enough—you can carry anything too far.

Man In A Barrel
You say something about allowance for "obsolescence, depreciation and depletion." That's where I come in. As an American businessman I am a study in obsolescence. I am depleted, deflated, depressed, denatured, denounced, deranged, and dejected. And so is my Old Man.

JOHN DOE.
Next, we have a letter to the Secretary of Agriculture from a citizen interested in vitamins:

Dear Sir:
Please send me your bulletin on or about vitamins. I have read many times of vitamins but have never seen a person that could tell me anything definite about them. I would like to know what a vitamin is, would like to see a photograph of one, would like to see if they favor a boll weevil, or what they do favor, or what they look like. If they are good for persons to swallow I would like to know what they look like, so I would know what to swallow and what to let alone.

Yours truly,
And the following excerpts from letters to various government bureaus are original and to the point:
"Please find out for certain if my husband is dead, as the man I am going with won't eat anything until he nose for sure."
"Please send me my wife's form to fill out."
"I have told the Relief Board about my shape, and they say it is because I live on my father's farm."

Culture Revealed
Yes; Uncle Sam's mail bag brings him millions of letters annually from his 130,000,000 relatives. They give him every kind of advice, and ask him questions on every conceivable subject. Many are unintentionally humorous, and often make him laugh through his tears. Some are pitiful, while others abound in sarcasm; but our Uncle Samuel is patient and considerate, and he replies to one and all to the best of his ability.

As a concluding thought, there is no subject, in my opinion, of more universal interest and utility than the art of writing and speaking one's own language effectively. It is the basis of culture, as we all know, but it is infinitely more than that; it is the key to all human relationship, the medium through which we can command the attention of others. Indeed, the way we write and talk largely determines our success in life.

It is believed that Charles I first served ice cream as a dessert at a royal banquet.
York is one of the oldest settlements in England.

Abraham Lincoln

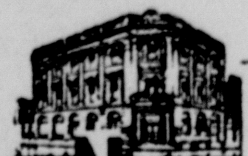

"MAN for the AGES"

The vast sculptured face on the granite of a mountain-top may fade at last, erased by the elements and the hand of Time.

But the spiritual outlines of the character and greatness of Abraham Lincoln will be etched ever deeper by the passing centuries. He will be, in truth, "a Man for the Ages."
